Pitcairn Islands CHRISTMAS 1979

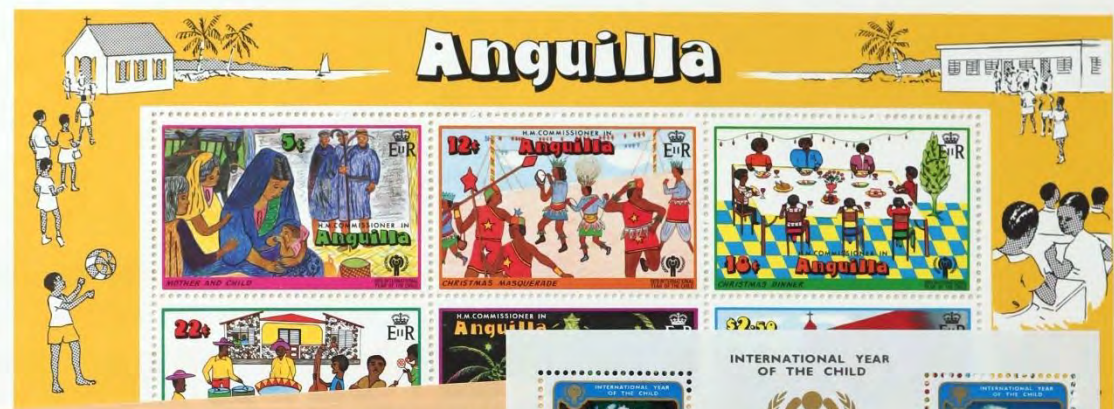

The giving of Christmas presents on Pitcairn follows a unique and charming tradition. During the afternoon presents are taken to the Square where they are hung on trees specially erected for the purpose.

Towards sunset everyone assembles to watch the presents being cut down and the names of the recipients announced. As the number of parcels remaining on the trees diminishes the pile of discarded wrapping paper increases until, as the fourth stamp illustrates, all are distributed and the people return home with their gifts.
