THE DEFORESTATION OF THOUSANDS OF ACRES OF FOREST WITHIN THE GORILLA HABITAT IS AN ENVIRONMENTAL DISASTER WHICH THREATENS THE ANIMALS' EXISTENCE.

DOGS

The domestic dog Canis lupus familiaris is a subspecies of the gray wolf Canis lupus, a member of the Canidae family of the mammalian order Carnivora. The term "domestic dog" is generally used for both domesticated and feral varieties. The dog was the first domesticated animal and has been the most widely kept working, hunting, and pet animal in human history.

CATS

For cats, life in proximity to humans and other animals kept by them amounts to a symbiotic social adaptation. They may express great affection towards their human (and even other) companions, especially if they psychologically imprint on them at a very young age and are treated with consistent affection. It has been suggested that, ethologically, the human keeper of a cat functions as a sort of surrogate for the cat's mother, and that adult housecats live their lives in a kind of extended kittenhood, a form of behavioral neoteny. It has even been theorized that the high-pitched sounds housecats make to solicit food may mimic the cries of a hungry human infant, making them particularly hard for humans to ignore.
