International Youth Year

The year 1985 has been designated by the United Nations General Assembly as International Youth Year: Participation, Development, Peace.

Young people everywhere are aspiring to a world of justice and opportunity. They are seeking remedies to the poverty that besets much of mankind, and an end to the arms race.
I believe that no institution or Government should ignore the significance of what they are trying to say.

WORLD WEATHER WATCH

The World Weather Watch, which was launched in June 1963, provides the World Meteorological Organization with vital meteorological and environmental information that is shared by all the nations of the world.

Each one of us benefits from the World Weather Watch, for climate is part of our daily lives. It therefore deserves our encouragement and our support.

World Summit for Social Development

"The World Summit for Social Development, meeting at Copenhagen in 1995, will address age-old problems that in our time have become global in scale and urgency. Building on a continuum of United Nations-sponsored international conferences on issues of common concern, the World Summit will provide an opportunity to achieve a comprehensive vision as well as a shared commitment to practical steps towards reducing poverty, expanding employment and strengthening social integration. The World Summit for Social Development is the keystone of this 50th anniversary year of the United Nations."

UNITED NATIONS POSTAL ADMINISTRATION
DISARMAMENT DECADE

The United Nations General Assembly's proclamation of the 1970s as Disarmament Decade provided the opportunity to use human creativity and economic means so that science and technology can be used to universal advantage, not disadvantage.

If the nations of the world resolve to take definite steps towards the goal of general and complete disarmament, they can succeed in creating and securing a better world for all.

PEACE

Today, more than at any other time since the end of the Second World War, we are within reach of the world of our Charter: peace, freedom, justice and social progress. The ills of hunger, disease, intolerance and threats to our environment must not be allowed to prevent us from reaching this goal which is so fundamental for our future and that of our children.

10th Anniversary of the International Youth Year

Youth symbolizes generosity, spontaneity and creativity, attributes that stand for hope and life. But far from all youth are able to share such promise today. The problems of global social development - unemployment, poverty and dislocation, fall disproportionately heavily on youth. The tenth anniversary of the International Youth Year is a time to generate momentum toward a more equitable society, making the maximum of the potential of the youth of all nations.
