This image displays a comprehensive collection of Chinese postage stamps, organized into several rows. The stamps feature a variety of subjects, including portraits of prominent Chinese leaders such as Mao Zedong, Zhou Enlai, and Lin Biao, as well as revolutionary figures like Zhu De and Deng Houxi. There are also stamps depicting national landmarks, including the Great Hall of the People and the Peking University gate. The denominations of the stamps range from 10 cents to 10,000 cents (100 yuan). The stamps are arranged in a grid-like fashion, showing a variety of designs and colors. The text on the stamps is in Chinese, and the overall appearance is that of a well-curated philatelic collection.

This block contains a large collection of Chinese postage stamps. The top section features several 400-cent stamps (400分) with various athletic poses, issued by the People's Republic of China (中國人民郵政). Below these are 10-cent stamps (10分) featuring a butterfly and a person. The middle section includes four 800-cent stamps (800分) with portraits of Mao Zedong and the Chinese flag, commemorating the founding of the People's Republic of China (中華人民共和國開國紀念). The bottom section shows a variety of stamps, including those with cultural figures, a large yellow flower, a red star, and sports-related themes like the First National Youth Sports Meeting (第一屆新興力量運動會).
